Selko® AOmix

Nutritional antioxidants

Selko AOmix for ruminants and monogastrics

Antioxidants are crucial to livestock's overall health. Selko® AOmix are natural, specially formulated antioxidant blends. They provide the protection that ruminants and monogastrics need to optimise fertility, offspring vitality, and immune system support.

Good bioavailability for optimal absorption

Ruminants and monogastrics have different types of stomachs which digest feed quite differently. If the supplement is not well-digested, fewer antioxidants are made available. Selko AOmix is available in two carefully developed blends - one for ruminants and another for monogastrics.

Optimal distribution for total protection

Another factor in an antioxidant's effectiveness is its water vs. fat solubility, which can vary widely. The solubility is what determines where antioxidants are distributed in the body. Vitamin E, for instance, mainly delivers its antioxidant effect at the cell membrane, and has less impact on the internal or external cell environment.

The natural antioxidants in the two, specially formulated Selko AOmix blends have not only been selected for ideal digestibility, they also cover the complete water-to-fat-soluble range to ensure optimal antioxidant activity in every part of the cell. The result? Livestock that is more vital, fertile and healthy from day one - and more productive for you.
